House of Representatives.
[The Presidents speech continued.]

Gentlemen of the Senate, and House of Representatives.

I HAVE directed the proper officers to lay before you respectively such papers and estimates as regard the affairs particularly recommended to your consideration, and necessary to convey to you that information of the state of the union, which it is my duty to afford.

The welfare of our country is the great object to which our cares and efforts ought to be directed. And I shall derive great satisfaction from a co-operation with you, in the pleasing though arduous task of ensuring to your fellow citizens the blessings, which they have a right to expect, from a free, efficient & equal government.

G. WASHINGTON.

United States, January 8, 1790.

The president then retired, and the house returned to their own room: When the president's speech being read by the clerk, it was voted that the house would tomorrow take the same into consideration in a committee of the whole on the state of the union. On motion, it was voted to proceed to ballot for a chairman, when the votes being collected, it appeared, that the rev. Dr. Lyman was re-elected.

Adjourned till to morrow, 11 o'clock.

A. M.

House of Representatives of the United States.

January 9.

Mr. Clymer, from Pennsylvania, appeared and took his seat.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, addressed to the Speaker, was read informing the house that he had prepared a plan, pursuant to the resolution of the 21st of September last, relative to provision for support of the public credit, which he was ready to report at such time, and in such manner, as the house might be pleased to order.

A debate now ensued with regard to the manner and time of communicating the report. With regard to the manner, some members insisted strongly on the propriety of the secretary's delivering it in person and of explaining it to the house; because it was not to be expected, that the members could thoroughly comprehend a plan of such an extensive and intricate nature, without previous explanation; others contended, that if it should want explanation, it ought to be given in writing to the house; with regard to the time, some were for receiving the report immediately on Monday next, this was opposed.

It was said the house was too ill at present to bring a matter of such vast importance before it—but that by Thursday next, the house would in all probability have an accession of many members.

After a variety of opinions had been given on these two writers, the house at last came to the following resolution:

This on Thursday next, this house will receive in writing the report of the secretary of the department of the treasury, agreeably to the order of this house of the 21st day of September last.

The house then resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the president's speech, Mr. Baldwin in the chair, and came to the following resolution:

Resolved, at the opinion of this committee, that an address be presented by the house to the President of the United States, in answer to his speech to both houses with affurances, that this house will without delay, proceed to take into their serious consideration, the various and important matters recommended to their attention.

This being agreed to,

Mr. Sarah (S. C.) Mr. Clymer, and Mr. Lawrence, were appointed a committee to prepare said address.

A petition of Christopher Sadler, of Nova Scotia, was read, praying relief against a seizure of his vessel and cargo, which was made at the port of Boston, for violation of the impost law of the United States, of which, at the time, he affirms he was totally ignorant.

The house then adjourned till Monday 11 o'clock.

The president of the United States, when he addressed the two houses of Congress yesterday, was dressed in a dark coloured suit of clothes, of American manufacture; the cloth appeared to be of the finest texture, the colour of black in shades not quite black. This elegant fabric was from the manufacturer in Hartford.

JANUARY 12.

The House resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the address in answer to the speech of the President of the United States; and having gone through the same, by paragraphs, the committee rose, and the Chairman Mr. Baldwin, reported, that the committee had according to order, had the said address under consideration, and made no amendment thereto.

The House then unanimously agreed to the said address; Mr. Smith (S. C.) Mr. Clymer, and Mr. Laurence were appointed a committee to wait on the President, to know what time and place it would be convenient for him to receive the same.

A message in writing was received from the President of the United States, by the Secretary at war, communicating to the House in a confidential manner sundry papers, respecting the tribes of Indians on the south western frontiers. A motion was then made to have the galleries cleared, which was done accordingly.

Mr. Boudinot from the committee to whom it was referred to examine the Journal of the last session, and to report therefrom all such matters of business as were then depending and undetermined, gave according to order, examined the Journal, and agreed to the following report:—[This was presented to the House on Monday last.]

It appears to your committee that the several petitions of David Rawly, John Cowichan, Alexander Lewis, Arthur Greer, Jedediah Murie, John Fitch, Englehart Crisp, Nicholas Pike, Samuel Briggs, John Christopher Stoebel, Leonard Harbough, Hannah Adams, Christopher Colas, David Greenleaf, John MacPherson, Abraham Westervelt, James Rumsey, and William Hay, respectively praying for exclusive privilege as authors or inventors of some useful work or discovery, were ordered to lie on the table, and so remained during the Session.

It further appears to your committee that the several petitions of Martha Walker, Duncan Campbell, Telfair Coffin, William Fannie, Engelbert Klemann, Thomasin Gordon, Pringle in Genetics, Baron Steuben, and Richard Ham respectively, praying to be compensated for military services, or injuries, or losses sustained during the late war, were referred to the Secretary of the treasury, to examine and report upon the present petition.

It further appears to your committee, that the several petitions of John McGarrah, Dudley Tyler-Patrick Bonner, John Hurt, James Gibbons, Arthibald McAllister, Alexander Power, Attorney for Colonel Flower's regiment Henry Malcolm and Charles Martell respectively praying to be compensated for military services rendered during the late war, were referred to the Secretary at war to examine and report upon the present petition.

It further appears to your committee that the several petitions of Andrew Newell, and Seth Clarke, Sarah Parker, Bartlet Hinds, Robert Frazer, David Sturgis, Richard Phillips, James McLean, James Reid, Thomas Barclay, respectively praying, that the certain claims which they exhibit against the United States, may be considered and allowed, were ordered to lie on the table, and so remained during the session.

LONDON, November 9—10.

In Dauphiny, the regiment of Monseigneur (the King's brother) and that of Burgundy, have had an engagement. The regiment of Monseigneur refused to wear the National Cockade, which that of Burgundy put it with enthusiasm. A combat ensued, when the regiment of Burgundy fired on Monseigneur's, and in the skirmish killed men, in the second rank, on which the regiments of Monseigneur immediately fled and dispersed.

PHILADELPHIA, January 23.

Extract of a letter from a House of representatives in Bourdeaux, dated Nov. 17. 1789. to a gentleman in this city.

"Matters are now perfectly quiet and peaceful at Paris, and the National Assembly daily adopting measures to render this one of the most respectable and flourishing countries in Europe.—There is not the shadow of danger of a national bankruptcy, and private property is as secure as in any part of the world."

Extract of a letter from Bourdeaux, Nov. 19.

"No doubt you have heard before this of the commotions of some parts of this kingdom, but this province has been exempted from the like, and we have every prospect of peace continuing here. We think it necessary to inform you of this circumstance, lest you should apprehend your property not being safe here."

FROM THE AMERICAN EAGLE. Published at Salem by Mr. Thomas Cushing.

BY late intelligence from India we learn, that the French have ceded Pondicherry, on the coast of Coromandel, to Tippoo Saib—referring the right for a limited time of keeping a small number of troops in the citadel, for the protection of such ships as may touch there before this season is generally known. Transports were gone to bring General Conway, (the French Generalissimo in India) and the troops to the Isle of France.

Tippoo had destroyed the strong fortresses of Mangalore, on the Malabar coast. The English possessed themselves of this commanding situation the last war; but Tippoo, determined that they should never more take advantage of it, detached a large body of troops to destroy it, and attended himself in person to see that it was effectually done. It was blown up and overthrown to its very foundations, exhibiting a scene of ruin like the effects of a violent convulsion of nature.

The policy of this warlike and ferocious Prince appears to be, to gain Indostan entirely to himself, and to destroy all intercourse between its inhabitants and Europeans. For this purpose, he has ordered every paper shrub to be rooted up in his dominion, and every object of commerce to be destroyed.

Tippoo's numerous troops are under the most excellent discipline. The English by fighting them and the French by aiding them, have taught them the European art of war. A great number of General Mathew's army, who were captured last war, and other Europeans, are now in his pay.

LEXINGTON, April 12.

Mr. Bradford.

"YOU will please to insert the following Fragment; It was found on Tuesday last in an evacuated boat and by accident fell into my hands.—The beginning and conclusion of the letter was so much defaced that I could not read it; however, him, to whom it is addressed, through the channel of your paper, may be apprized of the unhappy situation of his friend. Where I have made a line thus, * * * the original was unintelligible.

True humble Servt.

JOHN BOYD.

Limestone, April 8.

* * * to be thus cruelly treated—his detained from the arms of my dearestanny, is too much for my slender philosophy to support. —the Indians are now picking up a part of their plunder, in order I suppose, to send to their towns, or their camp in the Sjato—Around the cabin to which I am chained (they used some chains which I had on board, & ingeniously, and effectually confine me with the help of two padlocks, without binding my hands) a part of my merchandise is scattered, and a final bundle of pencils presenting themselves to my view gave me the hint of writing to you—I have determined to conceal it, and when the Indians return to us, I think they will do, when they find us lacking I intend to throw it on board one of the boats and cut her swift; some person may find it who will forward it to you. In the hope and expectation that you will receive it, and that an expedition will be carried forward against these daring pirates, I shall offer my advice, which from my knowledge of their situation and force, I flatter myself I may do, without the imputation of vanity or impertinence.

* * * formidable * * that they have a train of spies on each bank of the river, which extend as far down as LimeStone; so that it is impossible to steal a march on them, by following the meanders of the Ohio * * *

* * * from the North-East, they apprehend no danger * * * near Washington—proceed up parallel with the river, but at the distance of 10 or 15 miles from it, cross a few leagues above the mouth of Scioto, then form in two divisions, one to file off to the right and conceal themselves on the race which lead to their station camp, the other to follow the course of the river, and make the charge * * * They might be penned on the point made by the junction of the Scioto and ohio, and your countrymen might promote themselves a valuable prize and a glorious victory
